

Prefab

from The Automation Group

The Automation Group continues to bring more to the table with Prefabrication.

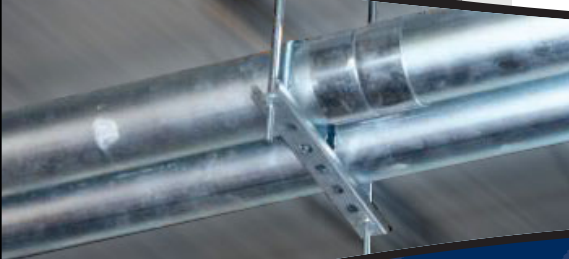

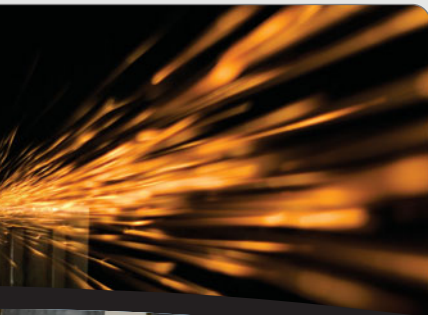

More and more electrical contractors are turning to prefab. TAG gives you the opportunity to achieve the benefits of prefabrication with an already trusted partner in the business. Save money, manage your schedule and increase productivity in your workforce.

What is prefab and why use it?

Electrical prefab is a method of assembling component electrical parts in a manufacturing facility. Electrical prefab is not a new idea. Many companies in the industry have embraced this concept for decades as a solution to increase efficiency and save money. Increasingly complex and fast-paced project demands make prefab a determining factor when it comes to finishing a project on time.

Why TAG prefab?

TAG not only understands your needs as a contractor, it also becomes an extension of your company. Having TAG as a partner broadens your abilities as well as gives you peace of mind knowing you are backed by expert knowledge in the industry.
